We are not acquainted with Mr. Martic, M.P.P. elect for the Portage, or Mr. Black, the defeated contidate, but we have heard bough to know with certainty that both are good men, which is more than can be said of every brace of opposing cand dates who seeks the suffrages of the electors. We have never approved of the practice of ministers of the cabinet I awing their departments during the busiest time and entering into the lists of a sid election. We do not question the right of a member to do so, but local contests should be fought out without the personal presence and active canvaising of members of the government. Their interference is note apt to leget contempt for the govern-ment than to engender respect for it. In the Portuga election some friends of Mr. Black think that certain over-z-alous supporter might have helped him better by remaining

Nothing Succeeds like Success.

The Hum at Messrs. McDougdl & Mc-Pherson's new factory is daily increasing. Their lusiness has been so extensive, not only in contracting and building, but in manufacturing as well, that they have found it necessary to engage the services of a bookkeeper and business manager. We understand Mr. J. J. McKinnon, has removed his real estate office to the new factory on 10th street, and that he, in connection with his real estate business, will keep their books and attend to the business management of this enterprising and flourishing young firm. We congratulate Messrs. McDongall & McPherupon securing the services of our genial friend McKinnon, and predict that with the thoroughness which he will infuse into the business management of their affairs, coupled with their own well known enterprise and push, will secure for them an unlimited trade, and their future efforts crowned with that success which their pluck, enter rise and skill as tradesmen so well merits. Mr. McKinno: will continue his business as real estate brokers, and will at all times be found in his office on 10th street, to which we understand he has to-day removed. They all have the best wishes of the Main for their success.

India and Its Peop .

The lecture delivered in the Presbyterian The jetter delivered in the Pressylerian Church by Rev. J. High Sentences.

Though style is not properly the dress of thought, there is yet a stricking analogy between the custom of a period and its literary style. The peaked beard the starched collar, the trunk hose, and the quilted doublet of Bacod, Sydney and Spencer are in singular keeping with high sentence, the quaint fancies, and the rich decorations of their style. In Pope's day—the day of powdered ques, and pumple velvet doublets, of beaux with cocked buts and ince unfless, and belles with patches on their checks—men dressel their thoughts as fantastically as they did their bodies. As they carried souff-boxes and rapiers, so they put titillating ingredients into their sontences and stabbed each other with epigrams. To day's dress—at least men's dress—is plan and business-like, no waste of material nor colors to attract attention. Our style is to that of the golden age of English litature what the frock coat and the slumed last.

The Young Men of Brandon sre invited to inspect the fine Stock of Tweeds for New Apring Nut's at Scott & Palaiey's.
